The subject of the proposed Lecture, no less than the cause for which it is delivered, commends it to public attention. Mr. B. b . s . xtensive reading, and his ready commany of facts and statistics, upon every subject which he touches, as well as his amof Louis s for their condensation, arrangement and argument, combine in giving promise of an unusually inter-sping and is structive offer. We bespeak an assemblage of the int bigent and patrenticitizens of Nashville, worthy of the Speaker, the Subject and the Cause,

New Business Houses,-We have had fo quent occ sion to refer to the improvements in the busin as structures going up in this city during the past Summer. Those on the Public Square have elicited much admiration; and we now refer more parlicelarly to those on Market street. One of the mo-t superior in appearance, solidity and convenience, is that erected by Messrs Mornes & STRATros. This firm has long been established in the wholesale grocery business, and are well-known los their energy activity and business enterprise. In ir ald establishment occupied to e corner of Market and Clark streets-their new edifice occupies a site a short distance above, and extends from Market to From street. They are now fixing themselves in their new quarters, preparators to enterng more extensively fran ever in business, with he opening of the winter trade. With the present i-c of the river they commence receiving addiions to their stock, and will continue in constant e pt of supplies throughout the season. With such t-citaties for storage, and their wide business connections and favorable acquaintance, they may of iv defy the "bard tim s " izet, which fell last winter, doing considerable larange. Acting promptly upon the maxim that othing is to be despaired of, they went to work Jour Nashville Merchants have gone Jown, is one d the highest evidences of their solvency and busiess capacity, as well as of the general puncturity their customers in the surrounding country. It strials like these, which test the stamina of ap ole, and when these te-ts are so bravely and sucestuly encountered, it is a source of high con-
